

I've long admired Dyson—not just for its innovative products but for the way it combines cutting-edge technology with design thinking and business strategy. As someone deeply passionate about the business domain, I'm excited by how Dyson continually redefines markets through bold, user-focused innovation.

Beyond professional interest, there's a personal connection too—I've always dreamed of owning a Dyson product, and being part of the journey behind such impactful products would be incredibly fulfilling. Contributing to the brand I admire, while also learning from its world-class business operations, makes Dyson my ideal place to start.

More than anything, I'm eager to learn how Dyson bridges technology, marketing, and consumer experience to build strong global value—and I'd love the chance to contribute meaningfully while growing through this internship.
